

NLMA on hiatus!

Hello there, loyal listener.

I'm afraid I have some sad news for you. These past few months have been really, really good for NLMA. The number of subscribers reached over 2000 a couple of times, sponsorship went well, NLMA's were great and available in abundance.

Helas!

None of this could stop me from putting NLMA on hiatus. There is a time in ones life where he just doesn't have time enough. This is one of those times. The reason for this sudden lack of time is the approval of the construction plans for our home. We can now start building. I've decided to help out in that construction as much as possible (as if I even have a choice, financially I mean). So there you have it.

Do not despair, however (or please do, and feed my ego):

NLMA will be back! I just don't know exactly when. I might even throw in a couple of episodes from time to time.

So thank you, thank you for all the feedback, enthusiasm, and devotion for this show. I seriously couldn't have done this without you listeners.

So long and thanks for the...